Orcutt, CA, August 24, 2009 – Insight Management Remains on Track to Deliver on its Near-Term Growth Plans

Insight Management Corporation (OTC BB: ISIM) today revealed additional details about its near-term growth strategy. With a solid foothold in the natural gas pipeline services industry now established, the company expects meaningful growth through the acquisition of other oil and gas enterprises that are both complimentary and offer greater diversity in revenue streams. The company is committed to finding appropriate targets in the $15 million to $25 million revenue range that will be accretive to the company's capital structure. In the meantime, revenues of its wholly owned subsidiary, Rebel Testing, Inc. (RTI) are expected to grow organically, as demand for natural gas pipeline and well servicing remains steady.

Commenting on the company's strategy, President and CEO, Jennifer Rapacki, noted, "The cost effectiveness of alternative fuel sources like wind energy remains some time away. Right now, natural gas offers the U.S. an abundant resource more readily accessible and which it may utilize to greater effect as a less carbon intensive energy source compared to coal for running electric power plants. With the acquisition of Rebel Testing and the merger with Microresearch completed, we look forward to concentrating on the business at hand, growing our company, and delivering the best possible oil and gas services to our customers."
